ESTIMATE 1,000 INJURED IN THE COMMUNIST RIOT

Property Damage in Paris
Is Estimated At

FIND BOMBS IN SUBWAY

Anarchists Shout "Down With Americans;" Damage
Cafes

PARIS, Aug. 24 (I.N.S.)—Unofficial estimates today placed the number of injured in last night's communist rioting as high as 1,000, including 100 policemen. Most of the demonstrators were only slightly injured, suffering mainly from bruised heads. The property damage is placed at $500,000.

Most of the property damage was in Champs Elysees and along the Boulevards Sebastopol and Strasbourg, and in the Montmartre district. This consisted of broken windows, pillaged shops and damaged automobiles.

The number of manifestants totaled 250.

In addition to the Paris rioting, demonstrations also occurred at Rouen, in which many of the demonstrators were injured and six were arrested.

A second missile, believed to be a bomb, was found in a subway station today, this time in the Cadet station. It was taken to the police laboratories for examination.

No Americans were injured, although a number of night clubs in the Montmartre district frequented by Americans were raided by communists.

Rioters battled fiercely with the police in the Boulevard Sebastopol where they tried to erect a barricade to hold back the gendarmes.

Soldiers and police guarded the United States embassy and the demonstrators were not allowed to approach within half a mile of the building.

It was the worst rioting Paris has known since the war.

Between 200 and 250 persons were arrested.

Shouting: "Down with the Americans," anarchists and communists broke into theaters and raided cafes, smashing furniture and crockery and driving out the patrons.

CORRECTION

A misplaced period in the advertisement of Frigidaire on August 16th stated that C. W. Winter, the local dealer, was selling that particular model for $1.95 delivered instead of $195. The corrected advertisement appears on page four today.

RECEIVES MEDALS

Mrs. Allen, 551 Otter street, and Mrs. Blain, Railroad avenue, received medals last night for having gained the most members for St. Luke's Society, Richmond, Va.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23 (I.N.S.)—Town look-ups, long the headquarters on cold nights for "Weary Willies" and "hitch hikers," may serve as impromptu employment headquarters for men to fight forest fires.

The bulletin issued by the State Department of Forests and Waters to all district forest rangers carries a description of how a New York ranger secured extra help when he needed it. He merely visited the town look-up at Ellensville and routed the men from their beds.

The bulletin does not direct Pennsylvania rangers to do the same, but it is pointed out that a ranger may press into service anyone not otherwise employed.

PREFER EVENING PAPERS

Americans prefer EVENING NEWSPAPERS.

This preference is most emphatic. It is reflected in the number of EVENING NEWSPAPERS published in this country.

On January 1, 1927, there were 425 morning newspapers in the United States, as compared with 1,576 EVENING NEWSPAPERS.

The public gets what it wants. Preference for EVENING NEWSPAPERS has been unmistakably expressed.

Two classes of people have expressed this preference: (1) those who read newspapers, and (2) those who advertise in newspapers. The preference expressed by those who read is an infallible guide for those who advertise.

No advertiser can afford to ignore public sentiment.

The public has chosen the EVENING NEWSPAPER as best suited to its needs.

The COURIER is an EVENING NEWSPAPER.

Youth Breaks His Neck While Diving In Neshaminy

NESHAMINY, Aug. 24.—Making a high dive, Earl Brady, 18 years old, 2520 Swain street, Philadelphia, broke his neck and fractured his skull Monday afternoon when his head struck the bottom of a swimming hole at the Paul Valley bridge, near this place.

The place where the accident occurred is a familiar sight to many Philadelphians, who go there every Sunday for a swim. It is known as the power house swimming hole and is on Neshaminy Creek just as the bridge passes over the Easton Highway.

Accompanied by Patrick Walsh, N. Twenty-sixth street; Edward Finnigan, Aspen street, and J. F. Leisner, North Twenty-fifth street, young Brady motored to the swimming hole early in the afternoon.

The four swam for a while in the pool, which is about 16 feet deep. The only place to dive from is the bridge, 15 feet above the water level. Brady made what appeared to be a perfect dive, but failed to come to the surface immediately. When he did so, his comrades noticed the position of the body. Something appeared to be wrong and they brought Brady out of the water.

The youth was taken to the Abington Hospital in the automobile of Edward Moran, North Twenty-fifth street. Little hope is held for his recovery.

PRELIMINARY WORK BEGUN ON NEW PLANT

Hosiery Mill at Chalfont Gets Under Way; Will Employ
About 65 People

PURCHASED SIX ACRES

CHALFONT, Aug. 24.—Preliminary work has been started on the plant of the newly organized Chalfont Hosiery Mill. The contract for the new plant to cost approximately $25,000 will be awarded next Tuesday.

When completed and ready for operation, the new plant will give this borough one of the most up-to-date hosiery manufacturing industries in this section of the state. It was through the efforts of the Chalfont Improvement Association, an organization of local business and professional men, that the new company is locating here.

The association purchased six acres of land 300 feet off the Doylestown and Montgomery highway for the purpose of industrial development. Three acres were given to the Chalfont Hosiery Mills. The ground and factory were financed by Chalfont money and will be presented to the new company.

Representing the interests of a number of Doylestown men, the new company is incorporated at $125,000. The factory will cost close to $25,000 and the equipment to be installed will cost $95,000.

The factory, according to plans, will be erected of steel and brick and will be modern in every detail to comply with the very latest methods in hosiery mill construction. The first section of the factory, to be built at once, will have a frontage of 106 feet and will be 75 feet long. Other units will be added from time to time, as business warrants. With the factory building completed by October 1, it is expected that all machinery will be installed during the following thirty days so that full-time operation and manufacture will get under way by November 1.

The machinery to be installed in the mill has been purchased from the Textile Machine Works, of Reading, the largest manufacturer of hosiery machinery in the United States. It will be of the very latest type of full-fashioned machinery capable of manufacturing a very high-class product.

The initial equipment to be installed calls for the manufacture of 144,000 pairs of women's full fashioned silk hosiery every week. The product will be sold to a direct manufacturer's agent in New York City and will be shipped direct from the factory here to the retail stores throughout the country.

Sixty-five people will be employed at the start, in the operation of the new plant.

Mr. Nevegold Proves Our Case

(EDITORIAL)

WE pointed out yesterday some concrete general evidences of how the so-called Independents are using the fire defense issue merely as a pretext, a smoke screen, for their real purpose of gaining control of the Borough Government, its offices, its jobs, its revenue and its expenditures, for their own purposes.

We showed how, upon the one hand, they are attempting to build up and misrepresent the fire defense question as the supposedly real issue of the present campaign, and how, upon the other, they are putting complete tickets into the field in each of the six Wards, thus engaging in contests which have nothing even remotely to do with the fire-fighting question and revealing their actual motives by their own program.

We propose now to be specific in our showing that the fire defense matter is of no real interest to them at all, but is being resorted to merely as a means of fooling and using the volunteer firemen, by bringing them behind the so-called Independent ticket under false pretense.

Who could find, or ask, a better illustration of this than is offered in the candidacy of Raymond A. Nevegold for assessor in the Sixth Ward?

Mr. Nevegold is not a candidate for Council, mind you, although Council is the one body that has to do with the passage and repeal of ordinances, and hence with the fire defense question. Unfortunately, however, the job of Councilman carries no pay.

Mr. Nevegold, therefore, is not a candidate for any such place. He is a candidate for assessor, which has nothing whatever to do with the adoption or repeal of ordinances, or with the fire defense question, BUT WHICH IS THE ONLY JOB TO BE VOTED FOR IN THE SIXTH WARD WHICH DOES CARRY A SALARY WITH IT.

What a fine illustration of real interest in the fire defense question, by one who did his utmost to assist in trying to build that question to the proportions of a political issue!

What an awful reflection upon the intelligence of the volunteer firemen of Bristol.

Mr. Nevegold is Assistant Chief of the present fire defense system. He was one of the leaders of the opposition to a centralized consolidation that from every viewpoint was designed in the best interests of the citizenship and taxpayers. Ostensibly he was one of those who regarded himself as most injured by the changes in system and methods which Borough Council made. Certainly he has been one of the leaders in the demand for a Borough Council which would repeal the consolidation ordinance. In other words, he has been in the forefront of the activity which has sought to make it seem that the fire defense issue was the outstanding question in this campaign.

Why, then, did not Mr. Nevegold run for Borough Council, even if the job doesn't carry pay? If he believes as he has been preaching, that was his duty.

Mr. Nevegold, however, elects to abandon the much prized and over-advertised fire defense question; he refrains from running for Borough Council; he runs for a job that has nothing whatever to do with the fire defense question, but which is the only job to be voted for that carries pay.

There is more to it than that. There are circumstances under which Mr. Nevegold is very evasive about the fire defense question and shows every desire to have it forgotten as an issue in this campaign. There are circumstances under which he is very frank about his desire to land this job with pay, irrespective of what the voters' ideas may be about the fire defense matter.

In other words, he is carrying water on both shoulders, and is doing so boldly.

Again what a reflection upon the intelligence of the volunteer firemen of Bristol.

We assert here again—and without fear of successful contradiction—that this so-called fire defense issue is a fake issue, created and propagandized by the leaders of the Independent movement, not out of any interest in the volunteer firemen, but merely as a means of using the volunteer firemen in their own efforts to procure jobs and offices, and perhaps gain control of the Borough Government, with all that such control would mean.

What an enviable position Assistant Chief Nevegold occupies in this indefensible mess!

As we said yesterday: When are the volunteer firemen going to wake up?

And will the rest of the citizenship be buncoed by such false pretense as is evidenced beyond question or argument in the candidacy of Mr. Raymond A. Nevegold—not for Borough Council and repeal of the consolidated fire department ordinance, but for assessor, which has nothing to do with the fire defense question, but which Mr. Nevegold wants because it carries pay?

"HUMAN FLY" READY TO PERFORM HERE TONIGHT

Henry D. D. Roland To Thrill Crowd With His Stunts

THE PUBLIC IS INVITED

Henry D. D. Roland, better known as "The Human Fly" is all set to thrill spectators tonight when he will balance himself on a chair upon the cornice of the Gallagher & Gallagher building, Mill and Cedar streets, at 7.30 o'clock.

Roland appeared here two years ago and held a large gathering of spectators breathless as he climbed up the front of the Coleman House, Radcliffe street. The act looked almost impossible and both men and women in his audience looked in amazement.

Tonight Roland will attempt an even harder task than he did two years ago here. The Gallagher & Gallagher building is one of the tallest on Mill street and has at its top a cornice. It is on this cornice that Roland is going to balance himself on a chair.

When Roland appeared here before rain somewhat marred the performance and he could not carry out the entire program.

Celebrates His 71st Birthday Anniversary

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 24.—Edgingham B. Morris, president of the Girard Trust Company, celebrated his 71st birthday yesterday by working as usual. In his office on the first floor of the company's headquarters, Broad and Chestnut streets, there was no outward manifestation that the directing head of one of the leading banking institutions of Philadelphia had passed the threescore and ten years of an active business life. But during the day he received congratulations from his hundreds of friends in financial, industrial and railroad circles. According to his friends and business associates, Mr. Morris appears fit to carry on for many years more, taking active part in business affairs in this city.

Mr. Morris gave up the legal profession to become president of the Girard Trust Company. This was on May 17, 1887, so that this year also marks his fortieth anniversary as head of the company. Ten years after he was chosen the chief executive of the trust company he was elected a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and since that time has been one of the most active members of the board in advancing and broadening the business of the railroad.

"I am still working, yes," he said, pausing in his task of reading mail at his desk, "but I scarcely expect to continue for another seventy-one years."

"One grows weary of it all in time, very weary," he added. "As for the 'record of accomplishment' which you say belongs to me * * * well, that is not worth discussing. The thing I am really proud of is my two great-grandchildren. And I have several grandchildren of whom I am proud. Those are things to inspire pride, are they not?"

The elderly financier dismissed world affairs with another modest word.

"No, I think I have nothing to say of the business future ahead of this era of prosperity, nor of such topics as the Sacco-Vanzetti case. I do wish to thank every one for their kind wishes on my birthday, however."

The record which he passed over so easily included a wide range of activities. He was associated with the Lehigh Valley Railroad, the Pennsylvania Railroad, Cambria Steel Company, Pennsylvania Steel Company, Pennsylvania National Bank, University of Pennsylvania, and is still actively connected with some of these and many others, among them the Girard Trust Company, which he has built up.

TEST FLIGHT OF BOMBER HERE IS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Lt. Frank B. Tyndall Pilots
Plane Over Borough
In Tryout

PLANE TESTED "LIGHT"

Performance of The Machine
Pleases All Who Watched
The Take-Off

Lieutenant Frank B. Tyndall took off from the Bristol landing field of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation in the Super-Cyclops, the huge bomber built by the Keystone Aircraft Corporation here, this afternoon at 1.46 o'clock.

He was unaccompanied, and circled the field, flew over the plant and a portion of the borough, and made a beautiful landing at eight minutes after two.

Tyndall was very much pleased with the action of the plane, and complimented the Keystone Aircraft officials upon the machine.

When he first arrived on the field he got into the cockpit, tuned the motors up, wiped the windshield off with his handkerchief, waved farewell to those on the field, and was off on the first test flight.

The plane behaved wonderfully well and will remain here for at least ten days more. Numerous test flights will be made, both with and without loads. The plane was tested light today.

"She handled very satisfactorily," commented Tyndall as he stepped out of the plane.

Another flight this afternoon.

EDDINGTON'S HISTORY

It is not always possible to preserve for posterity those buildings or tracts in which history has been made, but their is one way of preserving such for the memory when not possible for the sight.

There are some who would say of the small towns that the meagre history contributed to the country by the said small community is probably of not sufficient importance to hand down through the generations. This is not always so. Some of the smallest deeds, covering a minimum of time, have changed the course of a nation's history.

Even though the historical acts committed in a particular spot are seemingly insignificant, still human nature is human nature. We all glory in what our own particular home-town does for its country, directly or indirectly.

There is to the south of Bristol the town of Eddington, which is the seat of many things of historical interest. William Penn was a visitor to the section. Many events connected with his visits are often referred to by Eddingtonites. The house which he made his headquarters while visiting Bucks County will remain standing probably for years, but in time it will fall.

However, there are enough public-spirited individuals living within the confines of the town to preserve for their descendants paragraphs dealing with all historical things which have taken place there during the years past.

These bits of history have recently been published in the E. I. A. News, publication of the Eddington Improvement Association. The paragraphs tell just at what spots history has been made; tell of Eddington's part in molding America, and the like.

All towns have history of some sort, and proud are the citizen when it is history to be proud of, which is usually the case.

Eddington not only has a history, but it has a future as well. While aware of those things of the past of which it is proud, it is not unmindful of the future, but is looking ahead, thus laying foundations for forging ahead.

FUTILE GLOATING

Communist leaders and other militant radicals who boasted their bomb outrages, demonstrations and strikes forced the twelve days' respite for Sacco and Vanzetti forfeited, by their proclamations, all right to consideration of their zeal or imaginary grievances by society or constituted authority.

There was absolutely no foundation for their absurd claims. If anything the acts of violence they incited or committed tended to make Governor Fuller's reprieve dangerous, for no government can afford to leave any group think it can be intimidated.

The respite was not a victory for violence, but a proper recognition of the legal rights of the condemned men and a recognition by the executive of the existence in the minds of a great many sensible people of grave doubts as to the guilt or innocence of the convicted slayers.

When the radicals gloatingly advised the American Federation of Labor that "militant labor" can and will fight its own battles in the future, they betrayed their hand. Was this an admission they had come to the aid of Sacco and Vanzetti not out of compassion or belief in their innocence but because they saw in their case an issue upon which the communist party might be restored to life?

SYNOPSIS
Emmett Murtough of Kilkenny, Ireland, emigrates to America and is followed by Sheila Kildare to whom he is betrothed, and her father. Sheila begins to learn that Emmett is unworthy of her love. She meets the O'Shea family. Rory O'Shea is a professional boxer but a fine young man. He is a country boy who has been in the city since he was a young woman's old country charm and invites her to go to Coney Island. Murtough and her father object. It is her first outing.

Sheila had felt her heart warm at this demonstration of affection for children, and she could not stay the thought of what a fine father Rory would make. A faint flush spread over her cheeks at the picture of Rory with "her" children in his arms.

"Sure, an' it seems to me 'tis getting warm," remarked Sheila to Kathie O'Shea.

"'Tis warmer out, too," spoke up Rory quickly, "and we had best be getting on if we're to get to the island before sundown."

"To the island—to Coney!" exclaimed Kathie.

"Indeed, yes. Miss Kildare promised me the other night when she was here."

"Rory, ye be talking fast, Son," laughed the mother.

"Sure, an' who wouldn't with a colleen like her," complimented like O'Shea, and his eyes twinkled. "Tis myself that wishes I had the chance."

Rory laughed heartily at his parents' good natured joking, and Sheila felt no embarrassment. She knew that they meant it kindly, but Old Tom Kildare was ruffled when the young couple was ready to be off he accompanied them to the door in spite of Mike

"Ye'r that has-been prizefighter, battler O'Shea, are ye not?"

O'Shea's hearty urge that he remain and talk about the land of Knockberrym, which lay beyond from Kilkenny way.

"No, I'll be going," the old man stubbornly insisted. "I'll be waiting for Emmett," he said pointedly to Sheila as the O'Shea door closed behind them.

"Pleased to have met you, Mr. Kildare," Rory said heartily as he offered his hand. "Don't worry about the daughter. I'll take good care of her." The old man turned up the stairs and Sheila fled in front of her escort through the street door. They were silent for a few paces, then Rory asked with a grin:

"And am I to be jealous of Emmett?"

"Indeed, an' no. He's just a young man like yourself who used to live in Kilkenny an' who came over ahead of us. He's a great friend of father's."

"And you are not engaged, or anything like that?" persisted Rory.

"Maybe he thinks he is, but I know I'm not," retorted Sheila with all honesty.

"And that's that," commented Rory. "Now for Coney and we'll see everything there is to see."

They had reached Ninth Avenue on their way to Broadway and so to Times Square when they were halted by a man standing directly in front of them. Rory, without glancing at the man, took Sheila's arm to pass to one side.

"Why, Emmett! Mr. O'Shea, this is Mr. Murtough, who father mentioned a few minutes ago."

"Glad to know you, Mr. Murtough," said Rory as they shook hands.

"An' I'm glad to see ye, too," replied Murtough. "I couldn't place ye when Mr. Kildare an' Sheila told me about ye, but I place ye now. Ye'r that has-been prizefighter, Battler O'Shea, are ye not?" Emmett's sneer rather than his words awakened Sheila to the insult that had been offered.

'IRISH HEARTS,' with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. pictorialization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Emmett Murtough of Kilkenny, Ireland, emigrates to America and is followed by Sheila Kildare to whom he is betrothed, and her father. Sheila begins to learn that Emmett is unworthy of her love. She meets the O'Shea family. Rory O'Shea is a professional boxer but a fine young man. He is a country boy who has been in the city since he was a young woman's old country charm and invites her to go to Coney Island. Murtough and her father object. It is her first outing.

HEALTHY OLD MEN AND WOMEN
NEED NEVER HAVE GRAY HAIR

As Long As Color Glands Remain Normal and Active Plenty of Pigment Will Keep Hair Its Natural Shade

IF HAIR IS FADED AND STREAKED WITH GRAY BEGIN REVIVING COLOR GLANDS

Simple Tonic Starts Youthful Color Returning Again

Everybody knows if their color glands and hair roots are active and normal they will continue indefinitely to have rich, natural colored hair entirely free of gray and off-colored locks.

A doctor several years ago asked himself this question: "Why not rub a stimulating tonic into the scalp that will revive, strengthen and tone up those inactive glands so that nature in her own inimitable way will resume putting plenty of pigment into the hair tubes—surely the hair will then again resume its original, natural, beautiful shades of youth regardless of the users' age or the condition of their hair."

Remarkable Discovery
The doctor's search for a tonic that would accomplish this purpose led him into endless experiments, but the final result was worth it. He didn't want a dye or tint and it of course must be harmless and something that could be used for years and years without the slightest injury to hair or scalp.

Under the name of Lea's Hair Tonic anyone may now purchase the tonic he finally perfected. For several years now hairdressers and people scattered all over the country have been using it. Results are so natural, gradual and nice that men as well as women use it.

It doesn't stain the scalp. One's friends seldom notice the gradual change and to test what it will do one needs only to apply it a week or so to some small spot and watch results.

Users have been amazed at the younger appearance that comes with the disappearance of gray hairs from their head. If any reader desires to try a bottle of Lea's Hair Tonic on the maker's absolute guarantee of complete satisfaction they should pin a dollar bill to this advertisement and send it to the Lea's Tonic Company, Brentwood, Md., with their name and address plainly written. A generous sized bottle will be sent prepaid anywhere. Leading druggists have Lea's Hair Tonic, $1.00 per bottle. (Adv. 2.)

HOUSES—

that can be made into HOMES

Two-story brick residences containing six rooms and bath. All newly papered and painted throughout. Conveniences which are to be found in any modern house today—electricity, gas, hot air heater, water. Front porches of ample size and large bay-windows on second floor. A rear yard just big enough to be kept neat and attractive. With the touch of a housewife these dwellings can be made into real homes of comfort. Rents are very moderate. Location is good.

BRISTOL NINE DEFEATS HOLMESBURG VISITORS

The baseball fans who journeyed to Sullivan's Field on Sunday afternoon witnessed a real ball game with Bristol shutting out Holmesburg by the score of 4 to 0. Eddie Leonard, big right fielder for Bristol, slammed one of Cook's pitches for a homer in the second inning with two on the paths. Rigler, former Crisfield, Md., twirler, was on the hill for the locals and pitched airtight ball, allowing only one runner to reach third base.

Paul Barrett, who played left field for Holmesburg, furnished the fans with a real thrill when he went after a long drive along the foul line, racing after the apple through the tall grass in the marshes. Barrett grabbed the ball with his bare hand, when everyone thought he had missed, robbing Yost of a home run.

The local management will try to have the Philadelphia Elks here next week.

Air Commission To Govern City Airports

course the commission may adopt, appointees to the commission said they preferred not to be quoted directly until organization has been effected.

In appointing the commission, the Governor said that he attached much importance to it and that because Pennsylvania was one of the first states to create such a commission, the body would have to "do a work which will attract national attention." Since that time he has been content to let the preliminary work entirely in the hands of the men whom he selected.

News dispatches telling almost daily of the establishment of new "municipal airports" merely by setting aside a large field, have convinced some members of the commission of the necessity of formulating rules to govern such fields at once.

Under the act creating the commission, one of its principal duties will be to license all municipally owned airports. Private airports used primarily for the landing of privately owned planes will not be subject to the commission's jurisdiction.

Members of the commission already foresee a surplus rather than a shortage of necessary landing fields on regular routes. Necessity of establishing definite aerial routes across the state and between its principal cities will be another of the subjects which the commission must face.

In establishing such routes, members of the commission know they will be swamped with the airport claims of rival municipalities. For that reason, they foresee the necessity of adopting regulations governing fields which will not permit each village in the state to proclaim itself as a link in the big aerial routes.

Few subjects in the history of the State caused more political and local civic trouble than the establishment of the routes of the initial trans-State highways. Governors and highway commissioners were swamped with petitions and besieged by delegations from rival towns. Cities and towns fifty miles off a natural course of a highway, demanded that the road be bent to include their own "Main street."

It was a situation that few politicians relished, for local leaders were impressed with future oblivion unless they obtained official sanction of highway routes that would have appeared something like cross-word puzzles.

With the exception of James P. Woodward, who has devoted his life to politics, there is but little political representation on the commission. Nevertheless, they have been warned of the trouble that may develop from the "municipal airport" situation, and plan to guide all official rules and licenses accordingly.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Aug. 23 (I.N.S.)—Ninety years of service in the employ of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal Company, one of the largest producers in the anthracite regions, was rewarded here in the pensioning of Peter Roos, of Mount Carmel, and Frank B. Dawson, of Mahanoy City.

Roos, outside superintendent of the Mount Carmel district for the company, and Dawson, who held a similar position in the Mahanoy City district, each served forty-five years in the company's employ. They go on full pension.

Hulmeville Resident Observes 95th Birthday

for a quiet social period a few relatives and friends, among them being: Mrs. Elizabeth G. White and Mrs. M. F. Miller, of Cecil County, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Everitt, Mrs. Susan MacCorkle, Miss Erda Schatt, Mrs. Marian Kirk, Miss Ida Roberts and Mrs. Elizabeth Gillingham, of Hulmeville.

During the day many cards were received from friends of the one who is still young at heart, and several friends called throughout the day to offer congratulations.

Miss Gillingham was born at Flushing in Bensalem Township, and is the daughter of the late Jonathan and Sarah Runk Gillingham. In 1869 she moved to Hulmeville, and since that time has lived in the residence which she now occupies on Main street.

She has been a member of the Bensalem M. E. Church for the past 77 years, and until a few years ago attended the services quite regularly. She still delights in a visit to the edifice which has been her home church for so long a time.

Known to many hereabouts as "Miss Mary" she still continues with her work about the house, assisting her sister-in-law, Mrs. Elizabeth Gillingham, with whom she resides.

CHICAGO CUBS' OUTFIELD GIVES TEAM '27 HOPES

By George A. Strickler

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—Chicago assumes that the Chicago Cubs will represent the National League in the World's Series, or at least, it is reasonable to foster such a presumption when considering Joe McCarthy's outfield.

No team in either league can present a better balanced and more accomplished set of utility gardeners than McCarthy has assembled on the near northside. Cliff Heathcote, Pete Scott and Charley Tolson might even be crackjack regulars on other teams, but for McCarthy they must sub for Hack Wilson, Earl Webb and Riggs Stephenson.

Scott and Tolson are essentially sluggers, while Heathcote is a good all around player with more speed than any of his teammates, excepting perhaps young Woody English, the shortstop. The trio boasts strong throwing arms and is most trustworthy, either collectively or individually.

Heathcote has been the more brilliant performer the last two weeks, winning two successive ball games in the Cubs' recent protracted winning streak with his hitting, which has been timely as well as robust.

Last year he pastimed regular in right for the Cubs, but early this season, when McCarthy brought on Earl Webb as a contender for Heathcote's position, Cliff unfortunately sustained injury. Shortly after the season opened his wife and small daughter died and Heathcote was of little or no good to the team for several weeks.

Meanwhile, Webb, fresh from the Association, was hitting two home runs opening day, his maiden appearance on the north side, and otherwise conducting himself in a manner prejudicial to Heathcote's advantage.

On the recent eastern trip, Hack Wilson injured one of his trick ankles and Heathcote was given the preference as his relief because of superior speed. Later he was shifted to right in Webb's place and after a few days of regular pastiming, Cliff recovered his old self and began a period of beligerency in behalf of the Cubs that left opposing pitchers apprehensive.

Tolson specializes in home runs, particularly when he serves as a pinch hitter. Scott is a so-called speed merchant and a good hitter who can be counted on for anything at the late, including strikeouts.

If the Cubs reach the world's series, and one can hardly be from Chicago without apologizing for using "if," Chicagoans have decided the Bruins are "in," this set of extras will be one of the reasons heavy money will back the choice of the Loop.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 2 (I.N.S.)—A self-styled messenger from the Diety was among those who failed to convince square-jawed guards at the executive mansion here that they had business with Governor John S. Fisher.

One of the state troopers guarding the mansion stopped Merlo Cope, a former alderman here, to inquire why Cope was wandering near the mansion. Cope promptly informed the trooper that he came bearing a divine message for the Governor. The trooper was dubious. He asked for credentials. None being forthcoming he promptly called the local police and had Cope taken into custody for questioning.

Why are there so many charming women today?

Never before have there been so many charming women. Wherever you go, you find them. Vivacious, happy, beautiful, delightfully dressed in the most exquisite taste.

Clear, pink-and-white complexion, luxurious, well-kept hair, gleaming teeth, trim athletic carriage—these are almost universal characteristics of American women of today.

Why?

At first thought it may sound absurd, but one of the most powerful teachers has been advertising.

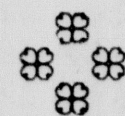

Advertising has helped to teach us all that the real basis of beauty is health and cleanliness. We are the greatest users of soap and water in the world.

Advertising has taught us how to care for our teeth, our hair, our feet, our hands and our complexions.

Advertising has taught us how to dress—how to choose colors and fabrics and becoming styles.

Advertising has taught us how to talk, how to entertain.

One reason why so many women are charming is because so many women are reading advertising. From advertising they are learning the secrets of great beauty specialists. They are getting health information of inestimable value. They are learning the secrets of becoming dress from the famous designers of Paris and New York.

Advertising is one of the biggest reasons why so many women are so charming
